Investigation into charges that quantity of sewer pipe has been liverted from public to private diverted use will be continued tonight by

It is expected that an audit of program as approximately 50 per the city's books, showing how much pipe actually has been purchased, will be presented to council and turned over to the bond commission. The commission, at present, is investigating the amount of pipe already laid in the city sewer project.

Charges were preferred several weeks ago that some of the pipe had been used by city officials for private purposes. The council hopes to find the actual amount of pipe missing by comparing the purchase receipts to the amount

U. S. Prison Smuggling Is Charged to Another; Harry F. Dobbs Named Foreman of New Group.

Clifford A. Ogburn, former superintendent of the Chattahoochee garage of the Works Project Administration, and Hubert Lasseter. a clerical assistant, were indicted by the federal grand jury yesterday in connection with the disappearance of a WPA dump truck.

The jury also returned a second indictment against Ogburn, accusing him of driving another government car 682 miles without permission, and with misappropriating a battery belonging to the WPA.

According to the indictment, Ogburn ordered Joseph Donaldson, a garage employe, to change the dump truck's motor number with the number of a motor on the shop junk pile, when the dump truck was brought to the garage last May for repairs.

Reported as Junk. Then, the government alleges, Ogburn and Lasseter falsely re-ported on the condition of the truck, representing it as junk, and announcing the cost of repairs would exceed the worth of the machine.

Since then, no trace of the truck has been found.

Called into session by United States District Judge E. Marvin Underwood, coincident with the opening of the October term of district court, and the United States circuit court of appeals for the fifth district, the jury elected Harry F. Dobbs foreman, and returned 15 true bills, the majority of them charging violations of federal liquor laws.

Pen Smuggling Charges.

Among the indictments brought included one against John Wesley Ward, former Atlanta federal penitentiary electrical worker, accused of smuggling amytol tablets in to prisoners, and one against in to prisoners, and one against county courthouse, at which time 350 were presented 51 troopers.

GOSNELL DESCRIBES 'MUDDLED' EUROPE

Peaceful Scandinavians, He Declares.

The little democracies of Europe are like Ferdinand the Bull and would be perfectly content to remain peaceful unless, like Ferdinand nand, they sit on a bee, which seems to be where they are now sitting, according to Dr. Cullen B. Gosnell, head of the political science department at Emory University. Dr. Gosnell, who was sent this summer to the Academy of International Law at The Hague by the Carnegie Founda-tion of International Peace and who also traveled in seven Euronean countries, described the muddled political conditions in Europe and said that the only prosperous countries in Europe today are the Scandinavian democracies.

The so-called "Dumb Swedes' nould be called the "Smart should Swedes," said Dr. Gosnell, because they have not engaged in a war over 100 years, thereby conserving their resources. Germany considered by Dr. Gosnell as the country whose resources are ost depleted, and this because most depleted, and of war mongering.

In the present European war Dr Gosnell observed the extremely high stakes of the small countries who are losing their idenity as democracies, and said that even the stolid Dutch have the jitters. All European people in gen-eral oppose war, he said, but in August he saw soldiers every-where and in particular in Germany, where the whole country was regimented.

Gosnell stated America's part in the war should be to re-vise the neutrality act for the proposed cash and carry plan, and take a lesson from the Swedes.

Police Committee Plan to Confiscate Cars Carrying Tickets Is Defeated; Couch Leads Fight.

City council yesterday was told 100,000 persons in metropolitan 'Atlanta daily play the numbers racket, commonly known as the

The statement came from Councilman J. Allen Couch, of the third ward, as he launched a fight against adoption of an ordinance providing for confiscation of auto-mobiles used by promoters of the racket and making possession of a lottery ticket prima facie evidence gaming operations.
"It is my belief that 100,000 peo ple a day play the bug, despite reports a year ago that the bug boys had been debugged and were begging for mercy," Couch informed council.

Leaves It to County.

After Couch's attack on the ordinance, which he contended took the responsibility of enforcing the state law from the Fulton county courthouse, "the strongest law enforcement agency in Court and the ordinance."

There were persistent reports forcement agency in Georgia," and placed it on the Atlanta police

There were persistent reports that Solicitor General John A. tinents in 1937 when he challenged assisted in preparing it, but Councilman E. A. Minor, of the second ward, author, said it was his own idea to stamp out the "evil." "If Fulton county authorities with all the state law behind them cannot break up the bug, which in reality is just plain and simple gambling, I do not see how this council can conceive that the city can with its limitation of 30 days' imprisonment be successful," Couch said. "It is ridiculous to think that we can be successful when the county can put men in the chaingang from now on after they are convicted.

"I think the approval of this ordinance would endanger the lives of innocent citizens because there would be a lot of wild automobile races through congested city streets. Another thing is that the authority of city police-men ends at the city limits. The bug boys would speed across the line, and then thumb their noses at city officers."

Councilman Minor insisted that cited the fact that the entire po-lice committee of city council had approved it, and that / it would 000 of the devout who came here "arm police officers with a from all sections of the world in weapon with which to fight these law violators."

"THIS MORNING I SAT IN HENRY GRADY'S CHAIR"

Hallowed almost as a sacred relie is the chair in which Henry Woodfin Grady sat as editor of The Constitution. In utter reverence, visitors have often prayed the privilege of sitting there, just so they might say, "I sat in Henry Grady's chair!" These transports of hero-worship are understandable to those who know the stature of this man this young man who died in 1889, at the age of thirty-nine, literally loving the nation into peace. Into the brief span of his life he packed enough of glory to crown illustrious careers for a dozen men. Yet, the far-flung fame he won as orator and journalist were not one-half so prized by him as the opportunities he found to serve his nation, his state, his city and his neighbor. If his victories in re-welding the union were lorgotten for all time, his far-seeing services to Georgia agriculture alone would insure his memory. Grady's words gave America Its first appetite for Georgia watermelon-and caused the country's markets to clamor for the Georgia peach. He wrote of southern strawberries and built a northern market for this luscious fruit. His pen pointed out the lowly peanut and it became a crop worth millions. His editorials and speeches of half a century ago encouraged adoption of farming practioes that are up-to-date today. Every phase of Georgia's life felt the impress of his greatness, but he never lost the common touch in his work or in his life among men. Henry Grady, fearless and progressive, left a heritage to The Constitution which it has cherished through the years and shall ever carry on an inspired conception of public service, deeply ingrained in its journalistic character. Henry Grady and other great journalists—the men who made The Constitution—built a great newspaper on clean, decent, upstanding principles which have been the guiding principles of The Constitution through the years, and which have made The Constitution the newspaper that is most welcome in Atlanta homes and so appreciated by Atlanta women. That this is true is shown by the fact that The Constitution, Atlanta's oldest newspaper, is today first in home-delivered circulation in Atlanta; first in total city circulation; and first in total trading area circulation.

Chamberlain's "war cabinet" is believed to have discussed the subject at its meeting Monday morning at No. 10 Downing street. A strong clue to the tone of Chamberlain's statement before commons today may be found per-haps in the Sunday night radio speech of First Lord of the Admiralty Winston Churchill, who said that peace overtures by Hitler or any of his so-called "neutral friendly nations" are doomed

Is This the Road to Peace?

For many years some theorists have argued that the eventual road to world peace lies through making war so fearful man will turn in horror from the use of force, as too inhuman in its ravages even for military contemplation.

Is it possible that, despite the fearful situation of the world today, we of this generation are seeing the birth of that overwhelming horror which shall, some day, outlaw war forever? There are indications this may come about.

An observer at the convention of the American Legion in Chicago noted a change in the reactions of the great crowd that watched the parade. He is a man who has attended every Legion convention for years.

It was different, he said, at Chicago than at other conventions. Different than at Los Angeles, than at Kansas City and all the other convention cities. It was not the rain that fell during the great parade. For, later, the sun came out but did not affect the human reactions. It was not, really, the parade or the paraders themselves, in which the difference was seen

It was the crowd that watched wherein the difference lay. At all the other conventions the parade had been greeted with wild cheers, with laughter and with acclaim. But not at Chicago.

There, in the throngs of Chicago spectators young men could be seen, silent, staring with wonder at the marching veterans. Serious wonder and it was not hard to guess its origin. "Must I go to the brutality of war, too?", they seemed to ask, wordlessly.

Young mothers clutched the hands of children and in their eyes, too, was that look of frightened wonder. "What of the future of these boys and girls?" the women's eyes seemed to say.

It is the same in Britain, a country at war. Gone completely is the light-hearted hysteria that, in the days gone by, signalled the entry of a nation into a war for a cause it believed right. There is no cheering, no great crowd to send departing troops away with the thunder of applause in their ears.

There is, instead, a quietness and a solemnity, all over Britain. No lessening of determination, no slackening of purpose, but a stern resolve to see through to the end a task every one of them knows is something evil and wretched, no matter how necessary it may be.

The world knows, today, the fearfulness of warfare from which bewildered, helpless civilians, men, women and children, are not exemnt. The world has read of the horrors of air bombardment in Spain, in China and in Poland. Every Britisher looks at London, or at his home, and pictures the terror of air bombardment there. Every Frenchman thinks of Paris laid in the dust and every German must imagine a Berlin pounded into the earth.

The false glamour has been stripped from war. No man or woman today but knows its filth and pain and evil.

Ruthless men have sought to twist that knowledge to their own lustful ends. It has become necessary that others must stand at the portals of Armageddon and declare they can go no further with their march of destruction, or the threat of destruction.

That is the stage today. Perhaps, tomorrow, the world may reach a stage where all men and all women shall refuse to have any part, no matter how small, in turning loose a modern hell on earth. If such a tomorrow comes, it will presage a new day of peace, a new day of brotherhood for all the world.

The solemnity of the average man and oman in a continent at war, the look of wonder in the eyes of young men and young mothers at that Legion parade in Chicago, may be signposts along a highway to peace through worldwide revulsion against war.

Police Courtesy

The public rarely is satisfied with the conduct and personnel of a city's police department. At least, the tenor of several recent complaints would indicate that, despite the remarkable job done of lifting the Atlanta force from the mire of politics, many persons still feel there is room for improvement.

It is striking, however, that a majority of the complaints deal not with the efficiency of the department or of the department's personnel, but with incivility and an overbearing attitude toward the citizen, thus indicating that some few members of the department are creating a resentment against all policemen by unthinking actions that alienate public respect for a city agency which depends chiefly upon the co-operation of the public.

There can be no question but that the efficiency of the Atlanta force has been increased a thousandfold under the present city administration and under Chief Hornsby. The politicians, some still complaining bitterly, have been ousted from department circles, although their influence must still, to some extent, remain. The majority of the officers are able, sincere and co-operative. But apparently there remain a few officers who regard the public as cattle to be shunted about at will, or curtly dismissed. While it must be admitted temptation must at times be great, the fact still remains the police officers are servants and not the bosses of the residents of Atlanta and these last are entitled to coutreous, if at times firm, cooperation.

The day of the overbearing or smart-alecky policeman has gone, and the sooner the few discourteous officers learn that law enforcement is founded first in co-operation with the public the better it will be for both, the department and those who foot the bill.

Mexican Oil

One of the first casualties of the European war is Mexico. The Achilles heel of the Mexican oil expropriation has been a lack of markets in all nations except those with a lack both of oil and of cash. Germany entered upon her latest military excursion owing Mexico barter goods translatable into cash to the tune of $6,000,000. Mexico is holding the bag, must look elsewhere for markets, although Italy will undoubtedly afford a convenient funnel for oil to Germany. But the market will not be what was hoped.

The temptation is great to place the screws over the thumbs of Mexico, which undoubtedly has taken advantage of not only the private investors of this country but also of Uncle Sam's good nature itself. But it is to be hoped the proper constraint will be exercised and a reasonable amount of sweetness and light injected into a firmer attitude toward the land to the south.

The actions of the Mexican government have been ill-advised. In that it is not alone. and the political and financial temptation was great. It was an outgrowth of international lawlessness which the great nations of the world did nothing to stop. But it should furnish an excellent example to Mexicans of the final value of honest and forthright observance of the codes of international conduct.

It is to the interest of the safety of the United States that the oil and land questions be settled. The United States now is in position to place its cards on the table for a showdown.

In short, then, the question is whether to regard Europe as closed during alterations.

"I guess this must be India, boys," remarked Columbus, as he waded ashore that October day. "This is Indian summer."

Whatever became of the Mr. Livermore who won the Bok prize for a fool-proof peace?

GERMANY IN A LONG WAR

(From The Roanoke World-News.) Germany has based its strategy on lightninglike strokes rather than on a long war and, within certain limited objectives, its powerful thrusts into Poland have accomplished those initial objectives. England and France, digging in for a long war "to redeem Europe from the perpetual and recurring fear of German aggression, done little more than feel out the western front and drive German commerce from the seas.

In a long war, such as the Allies anticipate, the question of the neutrality of large areas involved in the World War has both a strategic and an economic bearing. Germany cannot be attacked through neutral territory, either through Italy to the Brenner Pass, or through Rumania. Neutrality of Belgium and The Netherlands is a protection to Germany since its west wall fortifications do not cover that frontier.

In the latter phases of the World War, the Allies succeeded in preventing food and supplies of many kinds from reaching Germany. The question of how far an allied blockade will be successful, with many neutrals engaged in trade, is being studied with critical care.

The chief question mark is the extent to which Russia will supply Germany with essential ma-There has been much talk of a wholesale swap of Russian grain and raw materials for German machinery and manufactured products. But sia's surplus available for export has diminrussia's surplus available for export has diffinitished in recent years. It could supply manganese, petroleum products and grain, and if a real alliance between Germany and Russia were effected, could make a blockade of Germany largely ineffective.

It is interesting, however, to note that neither London nor Paris seems disturbed by this prospect. Both the English and the French are proceeding with the blockade theory with considerable confidence. They know that Germany will be unable to pay for any large volume of imports in money. They know that the Reich's holdings of gold and foreign exchange probably do not exceed 2,000,000,000 marks—an amount equal to only one-third of last year's imports. not exceed 2,000,000,000 marks—an amount equal to only one-third of last year's imports. They do not believe that Stalin will be so generous as to provide raw materials for Germany unless he is paid for them. And, while Germany could pay for foreign goods with machinery and other man-ufactures, its industrial plant and lapor supply would be wholly unequal to the task of turning out the immense amounts of war materials that would be required, and at the same time produce export purposes.

THE CAPITAL PARADE By JOSEPH ALSOP AND ROBERT KINTNER.

THE PRESIDENT UNDER STRESS WASHINGTON, Oct 2.-When the world plunged into war, many people wondered how the President, who has lived through so many storms in these last years, would meet the new, more tragic emergency. A month has passed since war broke out. The President has already acted importantly on sev-eral fronts, and it seems possible to make an interim report.

Riding the whirlwind is an exercise he loves (to a point where, when no whirlwind presented itself, he has occasionally tried to manufacture one). He is a good deal grayer now than a year ago. Although he still starts the day with his old exuberance, the lines bite deeper into his face as the afternoon wears on, until he looks a little tired when in repose. But these signs are natural enough in a man approaching his sixtieth year. Actually, he seems to be exhilarated by the vast and pressing problems which daily con-

As usual, he breakfasts in hed at a reasonably civilized hour. tackling the newspapers before he rises to go to his office. In the office, as usual, he goes through an interminable round of conferences, in which state department officials and the top men of war and navy department are now given much more is staying at his office later, however, and in the evenings he is much more likely to go on working in his comfortable, littered oval study than to join his guests at the after-dinner film or to amuse himself with his hobbies.

He watches the world conflict with engrossed interest. When the army or navy men have anything to report, they find him an eager audience full of technical questions. In his office he has set up big war maps, which are brought up to date every day, and, although the risk of eavesdroppers is great, he cannot resist his trans-Atlantic telephone chats with Ambassadors Bullitt and Kennedy. He has broadened the base of his administrative work, going beyond his former circle to include many more of the regular governmental officials and congressional leaders in his councils. In his private talk, there is less of his rather boyish humor, and more serious generalization. Those close to him say that he is preoccupied with the dreadful puzzle of what the world will be like after the war is over. He fears the effect on this country of the general catastrophe, and he is much obsessed by the fate of the the "new freedom" of his predecessor, Woodrow Wilson, in another, sadly recent world conflict. Yet, when some plan pleases him he still throws his head back with the old loud laugh, and the delighted exclamation, "that's fine, that's wonderful."

ACTIONS AND EXPLANATIONS As for the plans he has acted on to date, they appear to have been well conceived and well executed. His call of the special session of congress was admirably timed, and his neutrality message was shrewdly written, stirring, and without the "I-told-you-so's" which he at first hankered to toss at his opponents. It must have required an effort of self-control to abandon old habits, but he has vastly improved his system of dealing with congress. The imperious insistence that this or that "must" congressional leaders. In two or three of his actions, such as the hasty call of the Panama conference and the off-hand announcements that submarines had been sighted off our coasts, there seemed to be a trace of his weakness for the over-dramatic. But these are justified by the fact that he has had credible, if not wholly confirmed, reports of the presence of what amounts to a German submarine fleet in the Caribbean. Such a situation, even if only potential rather than proved, made it necessary to prepare for quick remedial measures. This also illuminates the slightly mysterious proclamation of limited emergency, which calls into being his power to regulate shipping as well as enabling him to deal with foreign exchange problems that will soon become exceedingly difficult. Indeed, his creation and disbanding of the war resources board is the only move needing real explanation. And this may be simply explained. In the first place, he only wanted the board's vice and never intended to make it a permanent body. In the second place, as the private preserve of the troublesome assistant secretary of war, Louis Johnson, the board's position was untenable

AS TO 1940 The President is handling the present very successfully. For the future, it contains the great question of his 1940 intentions. What these may be no man knows, but it is certain that the President still tells those close to him that he does not "want" a third term. His New Deal lieutenants, meanwhile, have ceased their political agitation (although the irrepressible Harold Ickes probably will emit a final blast on the third term before abandoning the subject.) Altogether, it seems only fair to the President to conclude that he is now thinking less of politics than of the national welfare.

Then, while I didn't attend the evening service a member of the family who did go said there were probably six or eight times as many in the congregation as usual on a Sunday night. And remarked upon the large proportion of young people, in both congregations.

The public has been warned against hysteria, and that warning seemed in order at the beginning cause it was natural to expen that the people would be fiercely partisan. In this war, by contrast, the American correspondents who followed the "counter-attack with pursuit" have written with the unfeeling detachment of men covering a small fire in disused premises. A routine spirit pervaded those stories which reported the herding to the rear of squads of young Polish civilians, bound for the firing squads with their hands in the air, on charges of sniping German soldiers and murdering German civilian traitors to Po

FAIR ENOUGH ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH McGILL.

THE REBELS AGAIN Somehow I got a lot of vicarious satisfaction out of the Mississippi-L. S. U. football game played. Saturday evening in Baton Rouge. Mr. Bernie Moore, the L. S. U. coach, is my good friend, as is Mr. Red Heard, the able athletic director. But I was wearing, figuratively, of course, the colors of the Mississippi Rebels.

The Mississippi Rebels are coached by Mr. Harry Mehre, late of the University of Georgia. He never had a dull football team.

The stadium at Athens is a monument to two men. Dr. S. V. Sanford had the vision and the courage to get it built. Harry Mehre and his teams of 1929 and the next few years paid for it.

This is Mr. Mehre's second year at Mississippi and he is doing very well indeed. Last year his coaching job probably was the best one in the south and one of the best in the nation. This year seems to be back with an even better team than the one of

The Lady Who Drives me parked the car by the lake at Piedmont park. There was a moon and it made silver of the ripples the cooling wind stirred up. We pushed the aerial up as high as it would go and heard Mr. Mehre's team busy giving the works to the Tigers of L. S. U. It was a workmanlike job.

It was a bit odd, listening to the game. I cannot say I enjoy listening. I prefer to see the sweat and the action and to catch, perhaps, a bit of the smell of the arena when the wind is right. toward the stands. Sitting there Saturday evening by the almost placid lake, with ducks quacking close at hand, it was a bit difficult to realize that a few hundred miles away Mr. Mehre was sitting on a bench with his stomach feeling empty and faint as his solar plexus nerves writhed like a nest of snakes. Now and then, I chuckled. He is quite a sufferer, is Mr. Mehre.

YALE AND 1929 One of his great victor's and his most intense moments of suffering was the Yale-Georgia game of 192°. No coach ever brought as much fame to Athens as did the Mehre teams when they were beating Yale and New York University and all the lads. The teeth of the Yale Bulldog may not have been as sharp as in the good old days when Yale was football and football was Yale. But beating Yale was something worth while.

Yale came to Athens in 1929, wearing the thick jerseys the Yale boys wear for New Haven weather. They also had on the thickheavy ribbed stockings.

The game was played on October 12. It was a warmish day: the sort of day on which politicians sniff the air for the smell of some distant barbecue and feel the urge to make a speech. The customers sat in their shirt sleeves and drank deeply of cold drinks.

Georgia got out in front and stayed there. It was, I recall, 15 to 0. There was but one minute left to play when I squeezed over the small and newly-planted hedge and sat down just back of Mr. Mehre. There were beads of sweat on his face as large as pigeon eggs and he was breathing like an exhausted wrestler.

"Congratulations," I said, since there were by then about 50 econds to play. "Not now! Not now, for Heaven's sake!" said Mr. Mehre hoarsely, "they may beat us." And then the gun fired.

Well, that was one game his boys pulled out in much the same fashion his boys pulled one out Saturday night. He is quite a coach. Of all the coaches who employ the Notre Dame system I suspect he is about the best, or certainly he is one of the two best.

THE CAVIAR DINNER Once upon a time Mr. Mehre's team lost a tough one, the score being 7 to 6 against him. At dinner that night the winning coach, who was not a very good winner, was host to Mr. Mehre, to Mrs. Mehre and to your humble scribe. He was not, I am afraid, keen on the proper manners of a host.

"Order what you wish," he said, "I don't care what it costs." We looked. He was serious, feeling very grand. So Mr. Mehre and I looked. This was in an eastern city. Down the bill of fare there was a special dinner featuring a nice helping of fresh Russian caviar. The cost, as I recall, was $6.50 per dinner. We ordered. A look of pain came over the victor's face. Mrs. Mehre had not joined us. Therefore we ordered for Mrs. Mehre, too, saying she doted on fresh caviar.

There was not much time before our train left. I recall we had the clams, the soup and then came the caviar, the containers deep in ice. There was just time to consume the caviar and leave the rest of the dinner. We left the victor sitting there, the check at his right hand, and told him how sorry we were to leave. He looked a bit anguished. I am sure he has an antipathy for caviar.

Well, it was good to have an old friend win one. He had what the boys call a tough opener last year and this. To win both years is a record of which to be proud.

This year, when the Rebels are playing, put me down on their side. They perform rather well for their Indiana-Hoosier coach

Freedom Violates Reason When It Includes Freedom To Destroy Freedom

In times like these, we are doubly grateful for the blessing of freedom; yet we risk the loss of it by failing to understand its nature and its source.

That we wish to preserve freedom is obvious, but freedom for whom' For those who cherish it, or for those who are It has long been our custom to consider the letter of the law rather than the spirit-to accept the assurance of labels rather than justice, yet we preserve them because their original good intention So in our passionate love for liberty and our zeal to preserve it, we give our worst enemies freedom to destroy us. We tie our own hands and stand helpless before attack. We see a brazen enemy tearing away the foundatoin of our house, but when he cries, we stand helpless before a sacred charm. The freedom we cherish has been transformed into a weapon to destroy us. Because an enemy has the pass-word, we see no way to stop

HEATED THIS HOME WITH TURAL GAS FLOOR FURNACES LAST WINTER

In hundreds of other Atlanta homes, too, this newest method of home heating automatically with natural gas gave new meaning to the word "comfort." Hundreds more will enjoy it this winter.

Designed specifically for the home which may be adequately heated by the "circulating" type heater, it efficiently and most economically bridges the gap between gas radiant heaters, and central gas heating plants. Exhaustive tests in our laboratory and actual experience in hundreds of homes have proven their high efficiency and remarkable economy.

Cornelia Tells Motive for Killing Harley, Then Kills Herself

By CAROLYN WELLS.

Meeting Yvette Verne, a film star, at cocktain party Craig Madison, invites her to spend the week end in New Plymouth, Long Island, at the estate of his wealthy uncle, Harley Madison, a widower. He lives with his sister, Cornelia, Craig and his cousin, Tom Shelton; Hetty Garson, the housekeeper, and Everett Ames, a secretary. Miss Varne captivates Harley, much to the annoyance of Anita Boyce, who hopes to marry him. Harley's plan to improve New Plymouth out of a common fund suddenly is opposed by men who want to be glorified by their donations. Unexpectedly Harley announces his engagement to Miss Verne, tears up a will, feaving part of his estate to the village improvement committee, and says he'll make a new one, providing for the actress. Next morning Harley is found dead in his room, the door of which is locked on the inside. Craig, who loves Miss Verne, calls Fleming Stone, a detective. Stone discoveres a part of a knitting needle, which you still possessed, and late at night you crept down the basement stairs and threw the parcel in the rubbish barrel."

"But I didn't kill Harley—I didn't!" her voice rose to a shriek.

"Attempt no denial," Stone went on, "the proofs are too strong. Went on, "the proofs are too strong. Went on, "the proofs are too strong. "And since you seem to have no intention of making a confession," Stone went on, inexorably, "I will state, for you, that you also brought about the death of Hetty Garson."

"No, no!" moaned Cornelia, covering her eyes with her hands.
"It is all known to me. While cleaning the room, Saturday morning, Hetty found the little hairpin under the bed. Your plan of concealing yourself in the room was a stroke of genius. But Hetty, finding the hairpin, surmised the truth. She was very intuitive, uncannily so, and she took the uncannily so, and she took the hairpin to you, and told you her suspicions. You put her off, but you knew that she would carry the thing further, and so, right then and there, you gave her a drink of Scotch, telling her she needed a bracer. In the liquor was a dose of bichloride of mercury, which acts slowly but very surely

"Then, you went off on the motor drive, and returned to find Hetty dead—by your own hand." "No, no——" Cornelia protested,

"When Harley announced his engagement, I did do all as Mr. Stone has described it. I planned long before and I was ready. Had I not lost that hairpin, the crime could never have been pinned on me."

With a swift and dexterous motion, Cornelia put something into her mouth, and though Stone sensed in a second what she was doing, he could not reach her in time to stop her gesture.

"Do not be sorrowful," he said, "you will some day realize it is a case of gladness." And in silence the three watched the sun set.

Leaving the two young people Stone walked down the garden paths. He had been sincere when he said it was a case for gladness meaning Cornelia's death.

He had dreaded to think of that all of which must have been her fate. He realized, better than most, what a vow meant to that strong forthright spirit, and he was glad she was beyond further earthly punishment.

ITS RECOGNITION OF POLES-HULL

Seizure Not Enough, Secretary Says in Implied Condemnation of the Russo-German Invasion.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.-(A)-Germany and Russia received em-phatic notice today that the United States did not recognize their partition of Poland.

Secretary of State Hull, in a statement, said this government would continue to regard the Polish government as in existence. "Poland," he said, "is now the victim of force used as an instrument of national policy. Its territory has been taken over and its government has had to seek refuge

"Seizure Not Enough." "Mere seizure of territory, how-ever, does not extinguish the legal existence of a government.'

Pointing out that "more than 20 years ago the United States recognized, and has since maintained diplomatic relations with, the Po-lish government," Hull announced that this government would con-tinue to recognize Count Jerzy Potocki as Polish ambassador in Washington and that Anthony J. Diplomatic observers saw in Secretary Hull's statement not merely a refusal to recognize the partition of Poland but also a condemnation of the invasion of Poland by Germany and Russia, when he said Poland was the "vicim of force used as an instrument of national policy.

How It Is Important.

Coming at a moment when dispatches from Europe speak of an imminent peace move by Germany and Russia, Hull's announcement appeared to have particular importance. It was regarded as a statement of this government's position if it were confronted with an invitation to join in a peace move, or conference, on the basis of the occupation of Poland by Germany and Russia.

Secretary Hull, on being asked for comment on a statement by the new Polish premier, General Sikorski, that a Polish army of 200,000 men would be recruited in the United States, referred inquirers to the law on the subject.

President Roosevelt's first neutrality proclamation of September 5 forbade Americans enlisting in belligerent armies, but excepted aliens from the prohibition if they enlisted in the armies of their own country, provided the United States were at peace with that

Delaying Action.

Against a German drive now, the Belgians, without the aid of the sturdy Dutch soldiers, will certainly be capable of more delaying action than in 1914. Once the Germans have concentrated for this drive, even before it betack Poland and Britain and gins, they will have shown their hand to the French. CAN BE USED FREELY . . . VapoRub is an external treatment. There's no "dosing"—no risks of stomach upsets. You simply rub it on throat, chest, and back.

ACTS DIRECT... VapoRub goes right to work to bring relief, two direct ways at once: (1) It acts direct on the skin like a poultice; (2) Its medicated vapors, released by the warmth of the body, are inhaled direct to the irritated air passages with every breath. This direct poultice-and-vapor action quickly loosens phlegm—clears the air passages—checks tendency to cough—eases muscular soreness or tightness—relieves irritation—brings comfort and invites restful sleep.

ENSATIONAL RESULTS IN CLINICAL TESTS

VapoRub is an important medication in Vicks Plan which was tested in a clinic of 2,650 children. Look at the results! Reports from supervising doctors show sickness from colds cut 54.95%; school absences due to colds 77.99% among the children following the Plan—who were instructed to obey specified health rules, to use Vicks Va-tro-nol (nasal medication) when colds threatened, and to use VapoRub if a cold developed. Man Wants Girl My Day: Many Fields Open To New Generation To Be Positive By Eleanor Roosevelt.

NEW YORK CITY, Sunday—I have paid two visits to the New York World's Fair since I have been in New York city, and I really feel that I have seen a good deal. I have been through the federal building again and each time I find it more interesting than the last. I saw the General Motors show that gives one visions of the possible discoveries which may be made in the next few years in the fields of science. I think it is probably the most encouraging thing that I She Loves Him

By Caroline Chatfield. Dear Miss Chatfield:
My girl and I live 200 miles apart and we have only our letters is probably the most encouraging thing that I have seen, for, in pointing out how the first telephone was received and then explaining what we know about certain scientific facts and how little we really understand them, the vision of what may lie before us must come even to the most unimaginative. Great fields of new even to each other, an occasional visit and a few phone calls as means of carrying on courtship. Bear this in mind when you give me advice. She is 21 and I am in my early thirties. She is my ideal come to life and she tells me that most unimaginative. A fitting climax to this show is to walk through what is supposed to be a New York city street of 1892, lighted by gas, with shops and houses of that period and the cobbled streets. I understand that the young man who arranged it is English, and that explains the fact that I felt I was walking in an English street rather than in one of the streets of my childhood in this country. However, this makes no difference in the illumination of the

The Pennsylvania engine was not very polite to us, and we were almost as wet as though we had been out in the rain when it finally reached its station in front of us!

Friday night I went to see "The Philadelphia Story," with Katharine Hepburn. It is a most entertaining play, but I cannot help feeling that even a sophisticated, disagreeable child could not be as odious as Dinah. Perhaps Mr. Barry, the author, had to paint her up in this manner, and perhaps there is no need for sticking to reality so long as you get your point across—but to me she seemed a very unreal phenomenon. We had a delightful evening and I think Miss Hephyrm and all the cast do so well that this play seemed a very unreal phenomenon. ### Only Three Weeks Required To- Lose Dowager's Hump

By Ida Jean Kain.

You might suppose a dowager's ump was something reserved exclusively for the dowagers-like diamond stomachers! But they seem to be the special anathema of all women, regardless of age or position, who make a habit of holding their heads forward. And that takes in business women, artists, writers and housewives who knit one, purl two! The d. h. seems to appear suddenly and without warning. There's no premontory pain. You just happen to look in the mirror sidewise, and there it is, perched brazenly on the nape of your neck. Having annexed this obnoxious little pincushion of fat, you are likely to regard it as a fixture. But you can get rid of it if you make up our mind to

Sophie Kerr, the delightful fic-tion writer—who looks like a fiction heroine herself-claims she used to have one of those humps, And she seems to think that banishing it was one of the outstanding triumphs of that particular year! How did she manage it? Why, with exercise, of course! And here's the one that did the trick Lie on the back in the bed, head hanging over the edge, and raise the head very slowly until it is in a straight line with the spine. Hold this position for a second and slowly lower. Do the exercise three times, later six, and make the movements of the neck very slow and deliberate.

Another good exercise for eras- F ing the hump is to lie face downward on the floor, arms stretched w straight out from the shoulders. Raise the head and arms backward as high as possible. Hold for B a second, return to floor, rest, and repeat slowly. Six times will be enough of that! And here's a third one for you:

CHARMING new member welcomed to debutante ranks yesterday was Betty Fitch Jones, daughter of Colonel Clifford Randall Jones, U. S. A., and Mrs. Jones. Betty, it seems, was not in town for the organization meeting of the 1939-40 Debutante Club, for about that time she was making her formal bow to Raleigh, N. C., society, having been one of the fortunate belies presented at the fashionable Terpischorean Club in that city on September 8.

You see, Betty's mother, who is the former Betty Fitch, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. W. E. Fitch, is a native of Raleigh, and the debutante is almost as much at home there as she is here. So, in addition to being a distinct tribute to her popularity, it was quite natural that she should be included when members of last winter's Debutante Club made up the list of attractive young belles to be invited for presentation by the swanky bachelor club.

Betty came with her parents from Fort Barancas, Fla., two and a half years ago to make her home in Atlanta, where she resides at 1327 Peachtree street. She attended Gulf Park College at Gulfport, Miss., and the University of Georgia, where she was a member of the Kappa Alpha Theta sorority. And between the numerous social affairs which will mark her coming out, she will continue her studies at the Atlanta School of Tall and slender and graceful, her beauty combines brown hair and big gray eyes. Her hobby is reading and she is a gifted writer, with a number of published stories and poems to her credit. In fact, she recently won a trip to Panama and the West Indies as the result of a poem she sub-mitted to the Pilot Club of Pen-sacola, Fla. She did not take the trip, however, for being an army daughter, she has visited Panama several times and has also spent some time on the islands. preferred a month's stay at White Sulphur Springs, where she and her mother spent most of August.

Betty will be introduced to Atlanta society at one of the most brilliant events of the season, the date and nature of the affair to be announced later. And a gay whirl of smaller parties will prove larity and charm.

MRS. WRIGHT BRYAN, the former Ellen Newell, was slightly mixed on her dates last week. On Tuesday afternoon she went to the Driving Club, think-ing she would attend the first fall meeting of the Junior League. At the desk she inquired if the meeting was over, and was informed that it was in progress.

Entering the room, she found Martha Hodgson Ellis making a talk. There was nothing unusual about that. Martha frequently makes talks before the Junior

But glancing about her, Ellen saw faces that were not those of Junior Leaguers. She began to grow uneasy. Evidently she had "crashed" the wrong meeting.

next to her, she inquired if that was a Junior League meeting. "No," said the lady. "This is a meeting of the Primrose Gar-den Club."

Ellen turned red with embar-rassment, but at that moment Martha, who happens to b: president of the garden club, came to her rescue, gave her a most cordial welcome, and invited her for a cup of tea.

It's too bad that Ellen left town on Saturday, for she will not be able to attend the real Junior League meeting this afternoon. She and Wright are visiting their brother and sister, Bob and Anne Lane Whatley, in Presque Isle, Maine, you know.

THE Pi Pi's regret very much that when the announcement of pledges was made yesterday, the name of Anne Anderson was omitted. Sally Forth is delighted to make the correction today, for Anne is one of Atlanta's most popular sub-debs.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Anderson, of Garden Hills, the attractive belle recently moved here with her parents from Hous-ton, Texas. She attends North Fulton High school, and is a win-ning example of the brunette type of beauty.

The Pi Pi's are as "pleased as punch" that Anne elected to join their ranks, and Sally predicts that she will be a model pledge.

WHEN Evelyn Jones ascended the aisle at St. Mark church to become Mrs. Polk Gholston, of Comer, she carried an exquisite lace handkerchief brought from Belgium by Mrs. J. W. Polk and Evelyn departed for California on their wedding trip, and at its conclusion, they will occupy an attractive new home, built next to that of Polk's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Gholston, prominent and esteemed citizens of Comer.

DO YOU KNOW that the Club Quadrille will resume its winter dances on Wednesday evening at Peachtree Gardens? . . That an attractive and vivacious blonde, who is one of Atlanta's most graceful dancers, has her business hours daily interrupted by a telephone call from a current admirer of the professional world? . . . That a lovely blonde who was a prospective deb, an only daughter, will announce her engagement Sunday to one of the city's most prominent and handsome bachelors? . . . That Sarah Lewis and her dancing partner, Braxton Blalock, were the lucky winners of a bottle of cham-pagne at the Spanish Room recently? . . . That a striking brunette received a set of Wedgwood plates from a young bach-elor who resides in the west? ... That Robyn and Frank Walsh are planning a trip this week to Florida? . . . That an attractive bride-elect was persuaded by her fiance to marry in early November, because he was afraid she would choose a honeymoon to the New York World's Fair? . . . That Charlotte Ripley, an attendant in Jane Lee's recent wedding to George Home in Evanston, Ill., caught the bride's bouquet? . . That a pretty Atlanta matron has taken her husband's bet of $5 that she can't caddy 18 holes of golf for him, and intends to try her skill at an early date? . . . That Mary Morris, who entertained recently at a shower and buffet supper for bride-elect Helen June Roberts, also received a gift at the party in the form of new radio presented her by her father, H. L. Morris?

What Stocks Did.

812 NEW YORK, Oct. 2 .- (A)-Stock market prices drifted lower today under the pressure of not very aggressive profit realization and eaders were fractions to 3 points down at the finish.

Selling started off briskly at the opening, but dwindled thereafter. Offerings were never heavy, and the day's volume of 837,890 transfers was the smallest since August 31. It compared with 1,129,-810 last Friday. The Associated Press average of 60 representative stocks lost 4 of a point at 52.8. The desire to cash gains made in Saturday's runup was given by brokers as the main reason for the decline, as there was little in the domestic or foreign news dispatches to cause a slump.

As far as the European war was concerned, traders appeared con-vinced there would be no early peace on terms dictated by Reichs fuehrer Hitler. The possibility that more destructive fighting and the bombing of cities might soon enter the picture was discussed. Fractions to more than a point ower in the curb were Humble Oil, Electric Bond & Share, Gulf Oil, Lockheed and American Gas & Electric. Turnover of 153,000 shares compared with 181,000 Friday.

Grain market was back under the influence of "European peace talk" today and price declines of 1 to 2 cents a bushel erased most of the gains chalked up Saturday.

Weakness in securities and prosspects of some scattered showers in Nebraska, the Dakotas and Minnesota also were bearish factors, although the prospective moisture was regarded as of little consequence, with most crop ex-perts expressing belief that the fall drouth still is unbroken, generally speaking. Dust was re-ported blowing in some localities in the west.

Pending the Hitler and Chamberlain speeches, congressional neutrality debate and private crop forecasts Wednesday, potential buyers remained on the sidelines. Selling, though not large, was persistent, but when the market touched early lows it dried up and fractional rallies took place at Wheat, being off as much as 2 1-8 cents at one stage, closed 1 3-8 to 1 3-4 lower than Saturday. Corn finished 1 to 1 1-4 down; oats 3-4 to 11-8 off; rye 11-4 to 11-2 off, and lard 18 to 27 lower.

Both Georgia Teams Win First Round Four-Ball Matches

The football season's most noteworthy performance to date has been turned in by the Vanderbilt Commodores, who snatched golf teams led the way into the victory from apparently hopeless defeat with only seven seconds

And probably the least surprised person upon learning of the last-minute stand of the Commodores against highly-favored Rice was Harry Mehre, whose Ole Miss Rebels rank today as one of the smarter teams in the conference.

Last year Mehre's Rebels had Vandy licked by a touchdown with less than a minute to play. The Commodores then took to the air. They completed a pass through interference and passed again for the touchdown and kicked the extra point

Hence the Vandy rallies seem to be inspired rather than just one of those things that happens.

Nobody would have given a cent for Vandy's chances

Nobody would have given a cent for Vandy's chances

Nobody would have given a cent for Vandy's chances against Rice and especially after the Owls had run up a two-touchdown lead. Vandy had lost 11 good men leading up to that game and had been tied the week before by little Tennessee Polytech.

This story doesn't seem credible because of the fact that Vandy didn't get into the game until it was almost

What seems more to the point is that Doc Plunkett is living up to his reputation as a great passing and running back.

Morrison seems to have a certain genius for keeping his teams playing spirited ball despite the score. For certainly two climax performances such as last year against Ole Miss and this season against Rice prove that it wasn't accidental.

THE FINEST SHOW.

There is no university in the country that can stage the show that L. S. U. does between halves.

This year they have a special feature and it is worth seeing a spectacle.

The great 215-piece band, led by three drum majors, rches up the field to the 50-yard line. Stadium lights then turned out. Red, white and blue lights on the bandsmen's marches up the field to the 50-yard line. Stadium lights then are turned out. Red, white and blue lights on the bandsmen's caps and twirling batons show colorfully.

Lights are turned on again and the band spreads the length of the field, spelling out "U. S. A." Then the band plays "God Bless America" as the lights go off

On Saturday night, a brilliant moon shone on the scene, which is incomparable in American football. It is difficult for critics to feel unkindly toward the memory of Huey Long when they see the results of his handiwork—the massive stadium, colorful band and the handsome buildings which make up the university.

It was the aim of Huey Long to make L. S. U. the greatest university in America and it stands today, a bit torn by political chicanery, but still a tribute to the man who conceived it.

Certainly it is worth while to see the colorful band perform. There is no other college band in its class. It is superb under stadium lights and magnificent when the lights are turned out and the bandsmen's caps twinkle as myriad colored stars on the field which spreads below.

GREATEST NOTRE DAME COACH.

There are certain well-informed football people who insist that Harry Mehre is the greatest Notre Dame coach of the day. I would not know about that. Elmer Layden, Frank Thomas, Jim Crowley, Jack Meagher and one or two others turn in outstanding jobs year after year.

But the reputation of the "Mehreicale man" of Ole-Never-Miss is growing. For the L. S. U. game he presented a smartlooking eleven, adroit on offense, strong on defense. It seemed to make no mechanical mistakes. It was a fiery, hard-fighting

It has been pointed out before that L. S. U. should not have scored. A natural mistake cost the touchdown. That came on a pass interference penalty. But it was clearly evident that Ole Miss was the smarter team, the team with more balance, precision and spirit.

Despite the loss of Hall, Bradley and several linemen, the Ole Miss team is said by observers to be better than last year's. Whether it is or not, the fact remains that it will be a tough team to outsmart.

Ferdinand's Corner: Tech supporters are cheered by Notre Dame's narrow victory over Purdue. . . . It may be that the loss of star linemen is hindering the lines attack. . . . Certainly, a 3-0 score is not one to discourage a versatile, smart-working eleven like Tech. . . . Mike O'Leary, former Atlantan who presides over the St. Charles in New Orleans, is treasurer of the Monday Morning Quarterback Club there. ... It is a club embracing 300 members who

Nobody would have given a cent for Vandy's chances against Rice and especially after the Owls had run up a two-touchdown lead. Vandy had lost 11 good men leading up to that game and had been tied the week before by little Tennessee Polytech.

A story gaining circulation concerning the Rice victory hardly seems plausible. 'Tis said that Coach Morrison got the boys together before the game and let them listen to a record of the exploits of the immortal Rabbit Curry, who was killed in the war.

1-Hitter, Series Even

Fort Worth Gets Off To Three-Run Lead in First To Win 11-0.

FORT WORTH, Texas, Oct. 2.—(P)—Old Fred Marberry stood out in the chill wind tonight and came within one hit—a ninth-inning single—of hurling his second no-hit, no-run game of a career of 20 years in baseball.

No schoolboy ever went about his task like Marberry, the 40-year-old veteran stopping Nash-ville's Vols, 11-0, to send his Fort Worth mates into the seventh and deciding game of the Dixie Series tomorrow night.

Marberry outpitched, outtalked and outfoxed the Vols, twice threatening to use his fists in a busy evening. Hardly had the game ended with a fast double play when Marberry threw down his cap and charged the Nashville dugout in search of Catcher Charlie George, his opponent in an early inning word battle.

Only four men reached base on Marberry, two getting walks, one on Shortstop Buster Chatham's error. The fourth—the killing one -was Shortstop Williams' clean single with one out in the ninth. Only five balls were punched out of the infield as the Vols swung weakly at Marberry's collection of slow curves, floaters and semi-fast Higher Average Women Bowlers Are Decisively Beaten.

The lower average "second" team of bowlers, who hold the three-game record for Atlanta women, won a decisive victory over the higher average group in an exhibition match on the new Blick's Bowling Palace alleys Monday evening.

The winning team, composed of Lucille Rawlins, Jane Blick, Martha Cleaveland, Margaret England and Johnnie Carter, bowled games of 479, 485 and 520 as they outpointed their opponents in each game. The opposition, furnished by Estelle Warrington, Lucy Rich-ardson, Dot Morris, Sarah Garner and Bebe Bangert, had games of 470, 483 and 454.

Lucille Rawlins had the high single game of 128 and the top three-game total of the match, 326, as she paced the winning The match was staged as an ex-

National Leaguers Inspire Al Smith Reports Tulane Heavy Betting; Yanks Remain 3-1 Choice.

By SID FEDER.

NEW YORK, Oct. 2 .- (A)-The World Series pot came to a brisk boil today as the rip-roaring Reds hit town, as full of the rah-rah spirit as the boys of dear old Siwash.

At the same time, some linger-ing doubt still existed in the Yan-kee camp over the pitching assignment for the first game of the fall set on Wednesday, although all signs pointed to a complete recovery of Red Ruffing's sore arm, thereby sending the American league's top right-hander against Paul Derringer, Manager McKechnie's definite selection for the curtain raiser.

Blase New York began to lose some of its "so what" attitude con-cerning the series with the arrival of the National league's standard bearers and indications were for the heaviest betting playoff set since the Yankees beplayour set since the Yankees began their domination of the diamond picture in 1936. The boys with a bob or two apparently weren't afraid of the Yanks this Accustomed as they are to these post-season festivities, New these post-season festivities, New Yorkers just couldn't shrug off the confidence and spirit of the National league challengers. Will McKechnie's hired hands are as full of fight as a nest of hornets. The opinion was they could make a lot of trouble for the Yanks, who are going into the series with their top two twirlers, Ruffing and Lefty Gomez, just recovering from ailments. Nor were the boys and girls overlooking the fact that the Yanks are rounding out a selfsatisfied four-year reign at the head of the baseball parade.

With the Reds' possibilities being smoked up, reports from all sections of the country appeared to point out that the betors aren't passing up either the Rhinelanders' chances or the short end of juicy 1-3 odds favoring the Yankees. While the metropolitan centers, like New York, Chicago and Detroit, were going for the Yankees to come up with their fourth straight world title, midwestern areas generally thought a powerful lot of Cincinnati's chancesand were laying cash on the line to prove it.

Dreary skies over Yankee stadium, the scene of battle for the first two games Wednesday and Thursday, made a workout appear distasteful to both contenders to-day. So the Yankees were content with holding a "skull session" in NEARLY EVEN.

DRIVE LETHARGY PRAISES 'BAMA'S FROM NEW YORK | ACE SOPH BACKS

Has Three Backfields Over 200 Pounds.

By BILL BONL NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—(P)—Earl Walsh, Fordham scout who saw Alabama play Howard last week, reported on his findings to Head Coach Jim Crowley today at the Metropolitan Football Writers' Association luncheon. Fordham meets Alabama in a major intersectional game at the Polo Grounds Saturday.

Walsh expounded at great length on the 'Bama line, which averages 215-220 pounds to the man; on Sophomore Jimmy Nelson, the Tide's best running back; on Sophomore John Hanson, a pile-driving fullback; on Sandy Sanford, consistent 40-yard place-kicker, and on the fact Frank kicker, and on the fact Frank Thomas, Alabama's coach, held out four of his key men until the sec-ond half of the 21-0 defeat of

When he was through, Crowley looked at his assistant and asked: "How do you think you fellows will do Saturday?"

HUGE TULANE BACKS. Alabama, the writers learned, isn't the only big southern team. Al Smith, who beats the publicity tom-toms for Louisiana State, reported seeing pictures of three complete Tulane lines in a New Orleans paper.

"Not a man on 'em weighs less than 200," he said, looking directly at Crowley, whose Rams go south to play Tulane October 14, and Lou Little, whose Columbians will be hosts to the Green Wave

Smith said Tulane "has so many good backs I can't name them all, but that the boys' own careless ness nearly cost them the opening game with Clemson. He added Tennessee would miss Bowden Wyatt at end, and might not be as strong as generally expected, and that L. S. U. had "one of the greatest offensive ends in the country" in Ken Kavanaugh.

"Coach Bernie Moore rates him a better pass receiver than Gaynell Tinsley," said Smith. Tinsley was an All-American.

L. S. U. plays Holy Cross Saturday and, on the say-so of Man-hattan's Herb Kopf, will face a team that's "terrific" when Ronnie Cahill is in the ball game.

"He's a great passer, and one who's hard to rush," said Kopf. "That means your boys lay back to protect against passes, and then they send fellows like Joe Osmanski and Hank Giardi plowin through your line. We won't meet anybody tougher, no matter whom

Pre-season scrimmages, often attacked by college officials, got a boost from Mal Stevens, of New York U. Stevens credited practice games against Army for the Viovital factor in their 7-6 victors over Colgate. "But Colgate will be a better team as the season goes along," Stevens added.

Fordham can expect a heavy practice schedule this week. Crow ley thought the Rams, expected to be one of the east's best teams "looked bad" against little Waynesburg. "The blocking and tackling were particularly poor, said Sleepy Jim, "and if we were to play Alabama today's we'd probably lose. But lots of contact work should fix that."

IMPROVED FOR N

Bulldogs' Blocking Poor; Defensive Scrimmage Slated Today.

ATHENS, Ga., Oct. 11 .- Oliver Hunnicutt, fancy-stepping senior of the University of Georgia football team, intends to make the most of the break he got last week when Captain Vassa Cate injured his ankle and left the wingbacking duties to him in The Citadel game.

Possessed with extraordinary speed that stands him in good stead in an open field, Hunnicutt grabbed the spotlight in today's offensive scrimmage against the Redshirts with his crushing drives through the line.

Time and again he ripped out of the arms of defensive linemen and sped to touchdowns despite below standard.

FORDHAM IMPROVES. Big Jim Fordham, whose per-formance against Citadel was extremely disappointing to the Geor-gia coaching staff, showed some wasn't running with anything like his usual power. Towards the end, however, he was making it extremely uncom-fortable for the red-shirted line-Should Fordham run with full power, Georgia's offenbe much better against clubs clash in Greenville Friday night, than it was against The Citadel last week.

Cliff Kimsey, who got into The Citadel game for about 10 minutes, was in uniform today and looked his old self for a majority of the afternoon. Captain Cate also took part in the workout. While the play of Hunnicutt,

Fordham and Kimsey was encourpoor and Coach Butts intimated

he would do a lot of work on it before he finishes preparations for the game Friday.

DEFENSIVE SCRIMMAGE. A defensive scrimmage is in store for the Bulldogs tomorrow afternoon. Coach Butts has freshmen walking through Furman plays the latter part of the practice today and announced would go at full steam tomorrow. Fearing the vaunted Furman aerial attack, Coach Butts and his cohorts planned to spend a good portion of every workout this to pass defense. In Captain Roten Shetley the Hurricane has one of the most powerful runners and accurate passers in the south and unless Georgia can stop his passing the Bulldogs will have little chance of victory.
